6 Signs It's Time to Invest in Flex Space Management Platform

Are you facing these challenges?

Syncing all the tools and apps you use is a nightmare

You use 5 or more different tools to manage operations and they are not connected to each other. You waste precious time syncing these systems. You overpay for dozens of vendors without achieving significant progress with operational efficiency.

Managing multiple locations is a mess

Managing multiple billing entities is making you mad. Keeping in order various balance sheets and bank accounts creates a huge mess. Bill run is often prone to error. Also, managing the office, desks, and meeting rooms in all your locations is too much of a struggle.

Understanding your business performance is troublesome

Money is coming to your bank account but you have no visibility on your occupancy, utilization rates. You have no convenient way of tracking your KPIs. Analyzing your revenue streams is a struggle and major decisions are not data-driven.

Booking a room in your space is way too clumsy

Even though you are a well-established and respected brand, you feel like your booking process is not making a good impression on your tenants. And it's hard for your team to manage it. It takes too much effort, while it could be much more convenient.

Communication with your customers is a struggle

You often find it difficult to keep your customers up to date with news, and announcements. It's difficult to streamline and personalize your communication process for each of your locations. Your customers often miss important updates and it's hard to keep them engaged.

Data security is an issue that worries you

You manage tons of data, including personal data and billing details. You are concerned with the level of security provided by the systems you use.
